

It is annoying and intrusive to have a company call at all hours of the day, especially during the dinner hour. The companies are now employing very aggressive telemarketers that do not understand the word no! If they want to contact us they can send literature instead of interrupting our dinner or my 4 kids bedtime routine. The residents of NJ asked for this law and should not be overturned because some of the companies are crying they need more bussiness. If I need something I will look them up in the yellow pages!
